

Armed Protesters Plan Another Demonstration at Texas Mosque

Bob Price writes at page. David Wright III founded the group and also posts about the Irving mosque on his Facebook event page. “Do I need to say anymore?”

Wright appears to be drawing scrutiny for his actions – particularly for releasing list of names and addresses last week. Talking Points Memo posted on his Facebook page, “I am being attacked and smeared by the liberal media for legally exercising my 1st and 2nd Amendment rights and for using public data to defend my credibility when they make accusations against me.” The comments are no longer on his page.

The Washington Times website. The Washington Times did not report this. They also did not report that Wright did not post just the names and addresses of Muslims and Muslim supporters who opposed the City of Irving’s March resolution. The list also contained the names and addresses of those who supported the city’s action, Breitbart Texas previously reported.

The Dallas region that includes Irving, Richardson, and Garland has become the epicenter of conflict between Muslims and other Americans. One incident has followed another in the region beginning with Breitbart Texas’ revelation of an “Islamic Tribunal” in Irving. This was followed by the Irving city council’s resolution supporting the Texas legislature for attempting to pass an “American Laws for American Courts” bill. In May, Breitbart Texas was in the building when two Islamic terrorists attacked the Mohammed Art Exhibit and Contest in Garland, Texas. And, in October, Breitbart Texas reported on protesters outside the same Richardson mosque where the Dec. 12 protest is scheduled.

More fuel was added to the fire in September when “Clock Boy” Ahmed Mohammed was arrested at McArthur High School in Irving for bringing a “homemade” clock to school. Officials became concerned that the “clock” resembled a suitcase bomb and might have been a hoax. Breitbart Texas reported extensively on the ensuing escapades of “Clock Boy” Ahmed as he traveled around the world.
