An Open Letter to God

Translated from the Hebrew of Dov Ben-Zamir by David Solway (March 2019)

Ernest, Roeland Kneepkens, 2013

Dear God

I can't be sure that You're there to receive this letter but I'm writing anyway, just in case.

I'm writing to forgive You for the distance You keep from the toiling multitudes like some reclusive billionaire in a castle in remotest Scotland, and to forgive You for the cruelty of Your indifference and also the great anger You have been reputed to indulgenotice that I capitalize my pronouns, just in case. And yet I have always admired You, indeed, regarded You with awe and trepidation. More than that, I have always loved You, not as I have loved my friends, few and far between, and not as I have loved my women,

many and close-packed,

might have saved me

for neither my friends nor my women from the inevitable disaster of my flawed, desiring self, subject to the ruthless dominatrix of Time and the drug lords of the Underworld, from my excesses and addictions

which are legion.
No, God,
I have loved You as the only One

Who might forgive me the minor devastations I have wrought as I forgive You
the major devastations you have permitted.

What's done is done.

Let bygones be bygones.

Let us be mutual in tautology.

But between You and me,

if You are not there

to receive this letter,

or even to dismiss it as a trivial irritation,

know this for a fact.

If You do not exist

I will never,

and I mean never, forgive You.

«Previous Article Home Page Next Article»

David Solway is a Canadian poet and essayist. His most recent volume of poetry, The Herb Garden, appeared in spring 2018 with Guernica Editions. A partly autobiographical prose manifesto, Reflections on Music, Poetry & Politics, was released by Shomron Press in spring 2016. A CD of his original songs, Blood Guitar and Other Tales, appeared in 2016. Solway's current projects include work on a second CD, The Book of Love, with his pianist wife Janice Fiamengo and writing for major American political sites such as PJ Media, American Thinker and WorldNetDaily.

Follow NER on Twitter @NERIconoclast