The neuroscientist Anil Seth[*] contends that consciousness is best thought of as a controlled hallucination. If so, control must be the key calibration that makes the prospect work: too much and you end up aping Mussolini; too little, the comedian who, finding himself in Venice and in danger of drowning, bawls: “Help in Italian! Help in Italian!”

Aiutaci!

Petrus Tornarius is the latinized name of the South African American poet Peter Dreyer—a form often used by some of his medieval German ancestors. He employs this pseudonym to sign poems he thinks “worth publishing, but perhaps a bit infra dig.” Dreyer is the author, among other books, of A Beast in View (London: André Deutsch), The Future of Treason (New York: Ballantine), and Martyrs and Fanatics: South Africa and Human Destiny (New York: Simon & Schuster; London: Secker & Warburg).
