

Assume They Have it All

We have to assume that foreign governments have all Clinton's emails – including all those that were deleted (all the devices handling those were scrubbed) and that the FBI was unable to recover – those probably involving Clinton Foundation deals and those discussions which Clinton was trying to hide by setting up that private server to begin with. Foreign governments have it all.

Let that sink in.