

Austria plans headscarf ban for primary school pupils

From the Austrian edition of problem in schools though they produced no figures to support this. “What I can tell you is that it is a growing phenomenon. A few decades ago we did not have this in Austria and now it occurs primarily in Islamic kindergartens but also here and there in public establishments of Vienna and other cities,”

The Muslims in Austria doth protest so much that I think the Austrian government is correct to bring this in now – before every other little girl is swathed in serge.

Ibrahim Olgun, the head of the Islamic Religious Authority of Austria (IGGO), described the proposal as “unacceptable” in his interview to