

Believe Melania. Don't Trust the FBI!

By Roger L Simon

I again felt the familiar nausea of our times while watching the Newsmax chyron on today's (Sunday Sep 16's to be clear) near fatal doings in West Palm Beach:

"FBI investigating second Trump assassination attempt."

Oh, good.

Okay, not so good. Okay, that's sarcastic to the max. Better might have been:

"NKVD investigating second Trump assassination attempt. Comrade Beria to helm."

Lavrentiy Beria was famous for the quote "Show me the man and I'll show you the crime," something our FBI specializes in regarding J6 (and continues to do, still investigating people hundreds of miles from Washington on the day of this supposed insurrection when none of the "insurrectionists" even had a hand gun.)

They're also good at lying, as they did in cahoots with the Department of Justice, over mythological Trump-Russia collusion for over two years (and millions of taxpayer dollars) and good at coverups as they did with the Hunter Biden laptop.

Although they finally, years later, told us the laptop was authentic, the contents still have not been investigated, at least in any public or significant manner, nor have 51 current and former intelligence agents who lied at the time and implied it was Russian disinformation. Wonder why?

Above all, they are masters of obfuscation and stonewalling on just about everything. Weren't they supposed to tell us something about the motivations and mysterious overseas connections of high school student Thomas Matthew Crooks who nearly took out President Trump roughly two months ago? Also some indication of why that day the Secret Service made the Keystone Cops look like the Navy Seals by allowing Crooks to fire from the most obvious perch in the state?

So far nada.

Will we find out any time soon? Perhaps their director Christopher Wray will give the full story in front of Congress instead of behaving, as he has for years, like a closed-mouthed second level Politburo apparatchik, a man who makes Anastasia Mikoyan, the U. N.'s former Mr. Nyet, seem transparent. (Nothing can ever be disclosed because perpetually "under investigation," apparently for the next hundred years.)

Indeed we live in an era where the public distrusts the FBI and government agencies beyond anything even the oldest of us have experienced in our lifetimes. They have kept so many secrets from We the People that it would take the equivalent of the Babylonian Talmud that has 37 volumes in the Vilna Shas edition to begin to categorize them.

Among other things, in our era we have had assassination after assassination –King, two Kennedys, a Reagan attempt, and now two Trump attempts—with details that in some cases may be extremely crucial hidden from us.

The FBI is at the center of this. We are not to trust them. The organization, as presently constituted, must be disbanded, our intelligence agencies along with them.

Yes, such organizations are necessary in some way but not as presently constituted or with even remotely similar unchecked leadership. For a long time they have undermined the basic freedoms on which our country was founded.

No one knows this better than Melania Trump who has experienced this personally and spoken about in a video previewing her forthcoming book:

“I never imagined my privacy would be invaded by the government here in America,” she said in the video. “The FBI raided my home in Florida and searched through my personal belongings. This is not just my story, it serves as a warning to all Americans, a reminder that our freedom and rights must be respected.”

And how!

I plan on buying Melania’s book when it appears in October and, although it sounds facetious and know she wouldn’t take it, I nominate her for new director of the CIA. She has more than sufficient language skills. She might even bring in her co-Eastern European, Novak Djokovic, who is similarly multi-lingual and saw through that scam of scams, the COVID shots.

More seriously, I am pleased Florida governor Ron DeSantis has said his state will run its own investigation of Sunday’s assassination attempt. With the alleged assassin one who professes his belief in a bevy of progressive causes, it will be at least something of a check to have other official parties looking over the FBI’s shoulder.

This is especially true since Kerry Picket at the Washington Examiner reported some time ago that Jeffrey Veltri, the FBI agent who spoke at today’s press conference and is the head of the Miami Field Office, is a notorious Trump hater, something that seems almost par for the course at the agency.

We stand on the edge of an election in which foreign powers have a big stake. Despite what the media would like us to believe, anyone who thinks the Chinese, the Russians and the Iranians would prefer to have Donald Trump back are liars, misleading us and/or themselves.

They were all quiescent when Trump was president. If he wins in November there is every reason to believe they will be again.

Our country's real enemies, as with many nations, are within, notably, in our case, with the runaway three-letter agencies. As Melania tells us, beware the FBI. No doubt she is foreshadowing on her statement, should her husband win, they are in for a drastic overhaul.
