

Blocking Pashtun culture event: Students force IIUI to shut down

I hope these students keep their nerve in trying to celebrate their culture – they are up against the youth wing of the powerful Jamaat-e-Islami. From Pakistani English language newspaper the here.

I found a video of schoolgirls in colourful dresses dancing it for their school friends at a school in England – I won't post the link as the comments included criticism at this sharing of a good and joyful aspect of their culture, and this seems to have caused the girls some trouble and distress.

Such as “delete ur video... dont forget one day u will face ur Allah?”

BUT also “Nice to see Afghanistan kids having a good time, under radical Islam these children would never have joy.”

Eventually I found a mixed sex performance at an American university.