

British need to retire at 81 to reach parents' retirement income standard

It's the same over here. Most people have blown what would have been their retirement savings on their children's education.