

Canary Wharf – the women and girls migrant hotel protest this afternoon

I posted about the demonstrations in Epping last month. And mentioned the Britannia Hotel in London's docklands (which used to be London Docks on the Isle of Dogs, Poplar, home of Call the Midwife)

Epping has held regular peaceful demonstrations twice a week ever since. I can't report and follow every one – so many towns are making their voices heard these days, and more power to their collective elbows.

News came during the week that coachloads of young men were moved into the Britannia Hotel in the early hours, under cover of night.

Asylum seekers arriving in the early hours of the morning at the Britannia hotel in Canary Wharf. Not a single woman or child among them. All young men. We are a tolerant and compassionate nation. But our goodwill is being abused. This cannot go on.

Watch the whole clip of them arriving – all young men – here

So now local people are expressing their desire for them to be gone. East London women, cockneys like myself dressed in pink started their rally with the old music hall song, Maybe it's Because I'm a Londoner.

Follow this link to Jack Hadfield's full X post to see and hear them. He is reporting at intervals from Canary Wharf and his videos are excellent. I'm impressed.

And this one by Chris Rose to watch them sitting in front of the hotel is also good.

And now via Janey they are singing Sweet Caroline

Outside the Britannia Hotel Canary Wharf where illegal migrants are being housed, the British ladies, all dressed in pink have blocked the road singing - police have threatened to arrest them. They don't care 😂

The men are not idle – within hours of arriving the illegal migrants are on the streets as undocumented food delivery riders. But this pair were stopped – for now.

I can't believe what I'm seeing.

Delivery drivers have been filmed trying to leave the Britannia Hotel in Canary Wharf just ONE DAY after illegal migrants were bussed in at night.

Locals are seen pushing them back.

What TF is going on?

If they've thrown away their ID, how do we know their age, medical fitness to drive, and who paid for their licence? Or is that another service they receive for free?

It's not going to stop and the government is worried that we are not acquiescing.
