

Christian speaker Hatun Tash stabbed at Speaker's Corner by Muslim man.

The reports about this are mainly from Youtube and Miss Tash's own ministry website for DCCI Ministries (Defend Christianity, Critique Islam). I have found one written report by second man was also assaulted in a separate attack.

Officers have established a crime scene where both attacks have taken place. A spokesman for the Met Police said Police have found a knife discarded nearby following the incident

Readers might recall that longer video shows her with blood along her cheek and temple. She fainted but was administered first aid and on coming round she was still able to berate the surrounding Muslims for their foolishness. She was steady enough to walk to the police van while an ambulance was awaited. I am looking for an update on her condition tonight. For over a century Speaker's Corner has been a bastion of free speech and lively debate; not no more.

The here.

Officers attended and found a 39-year-old woman suffering from a minor slash injury to her head. She was treated at the scene by the LAS before being taken to a central London hospital. Her injuries are not life-threatening.

Detective Superintendent Alex Bingley, from the Central West Command Unit, which covers policing in Westminster, said: "This was clearly a very distressing incident for the woman involved and officers have spent time with her, whilst she was being treated for her injury, to get an account of what happened.

"We know that this assault was witnessed by a number of people, many of whom captured it on their phones. I would ask them, if they have not already done so, to contact police.

The police Witness? Videos are all, over the internet. I'm from India and even I saw that.

The