

Corruption here, corruption there, corruption everywhere

by Rebecca Bynum

Of course, it's hard to say exactly when it began or why we suddenly seem to have become such a corrupt country, but one answer may be found in mass entertainment. It seems to me that the overriding message blaring from everywhere and infecting our minds is this: It is possible to do good by doing evil and indeed, oftentimes doing evil is actually required in order to do good.

This, I believe, is the monstrous lie of our age.

Thoughts?