

Globalists want to Ration your Energy and your Food.

Of course it's coming to that if we continue on this course. In the name of climate change, those at the World Economic Forum and those who agree with them, such as the academics offering up this paper to "mitigate" climate change, want to enact WW1- and WW2- level rationing of food and energy. Easy to do if we're all off natural gas and instead on overtaxed electrical grids. Click here to read the paper and watch Alibaba president J. Michael Walker at the WEF discuss the "individual carbon footprint tracker" that monitors "what you buy, what you eat, and where/how you travel."

Books like the ones below might become difficult to find. But, they might also be useless since, back then, they didn't have recipes teaching how to stretch rations of mealworms and crickets, which would likely be the case if this ever comes to pass.
