

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II has died.

On Tuesday she met Liz Truss the new prime minister and I marvelled at how well she looked (below).

She wasn't well last night, and her family gathered today. She died quietly this afternoon.

At the age of 96 she was carrying out her formal duties, receiving the outgoing and incoming prime ministers, less than 48 hours before her death. Respect Ma'am.

Tonight the newsreader said "The King is at Balmoral with the Royal family..." and I thought, BUT WE DON'T HAVE A KING!

We do now. Pray for him please, he needs it.
