

How The Killing Was Conducted

They did not enter, and simply spray the room with gunfire, as the BBC appears even now to think. They separated the men from the women. And then they called out, from a list, those they wished to kill, and shot them, as their names were called out and they acknowledged who they were, in the head. That's how it happened, according to the latest reports on French television.