

Hundreds of men in Pakistan investigated over mass sexual assault on woman

From the here as part of their First Up Morning Prime Time (English language); I can't embed it into othis blog post. It includes a description of the assault and an interview with the victim later.

The victim, a local Tik Toker, was tossed into the air, groped, slapped, and her clothes were torn off by the reportedly 400 strong mob. Media reports quited the vicitm as saying that a huge crowd of men surrounded her to humiliate and assault her in a park where she was filming a video on the occasion of Pakistan's Independence day.

The point many are making is that of a crowd of 400 men, not one tried to stop the assault or help her.

It's happened in Egypt and Cologne; where else? Where is next?
