

ISIS in the POLICE: French security agency INFECTED with jihadis amid fresh attack fears

This story has reached the English press now. This is the Le Parisien.

POLICE forces in France are riddled with radicalised officers, including some who have broadcast Muslim chants while on patrol or refused to protect synagogues, a leaked memo reportedly shows.

France is said to house thousands of radical Islamists and authorities are now witnessing a worrying rise in security staff inciting terrorism or professing allegiance to extremist groups.

According to the memo, 17 officers were lured to the jihadi cause between 2012 and 2015, with reports of at least one refusing to observe a minute of silence to commemorate the victims of a terrorist attack.

In another case, a French policewoman referred to her uniform as a “filthy rag of the Republic” in a post on Facebook.

Around a third of the radicalised officers were women and all of the cases involved junior members of staff, the report said. It is not their junior rank that is significant – but that they have only joined in the last few years. The late 2000s according to