

Jews outraged after mosque leader blames Mossad for Christchurch attack

From attendees at the event have already called out the event, saying they were “disappointed by some of the hate rhetoric”. “The speaker talking about Mossad conspiracy theories already left me speechless,” one person wrote on the event’s Facebook page. “Mentioning Mossad was deeply, deeply disappointing. And pretty racist,” another person said.

Josh Brown

@nzeconomist

Follow

Astonishing that at an 'Anti-racism' rally in Auckland, conspiracy theories were loudspeaked that 'zionist' businesses and the 'mossad' were behind the #ChristchurchShooting. Seems incitement against jews and Israelis doesn't count! WTF #LoveAotearoaHateRacism

3:49 am - 24 Mar 2019

11 Retweets 45 Likes

1 11 45

Chris Diack @DiackChris · Mar 24

Replying to @nzeconomist

@BenThomasNZ there seems to be a problem in Auckland: it cant be both NZ colonialism and Zionism responsible for the CHCH terror- I wish the activist left would make up their mind. You will never make political hay if you don't chose your straw man.

1 11

Looks like left-wing liberals are having trouble with the double think at long last.

Newshub spoke to Love Aotearoa Hate Racism co-founder Joe Carolan, who said Bhamji was one speaker out of 30 and there were many different points of view at the event.

When asked whether he agreed with or believed the theory that Mossad were behind the attack, Carolan told Newshub "absolutely not".

But New Zealand Jewish Council spokesperson Juliet Moses says the event organisers should have publicly disagreed with Bhamji.

"It is unfortunate that they did not appear to put its anti-racism message into practice, by challenging or condemning the racism in their midst," she told Newshub. "We must call out hateful dehumanising language, whatever the source, target and circumstances, and even when it is not politically expedient to do so." So she admits that political expediency gives Islam an easy ride.

Newshub contacted Bhamji, who accused Newshub of singling him out. "I made a statement, a lot of other people made statements," he said.

He continued to defend his speech, saying we need an inquiry into where the gunman got his money from. He didn't offer any proof to his speculation Mossad had given him it. "Mossad is up to all these things," he said. "When I talk about Mossad, why should the Jews be upset about it? Give me an answer?"

It shouldn't just be the Jews of New Zealand who should be outraged.