

Just a little ditty for the iconoclast

By William Corden

Let's lookit what we got right here, the bill of goods that we've been sold.

Biden's just a thin veneer, and worse than we've been told

A sentence can't be finished without drifting into space his faculties diminished but he's still in the race.

They trot him out for all to see hoping against hope but he's not who he used to be....
throw the man a rope

The vacant eyes, the hanging jaw he don't know where he is like nothing that we've seen before and this man is the Prez?

Time to yank him outta there and end this fools' parade but who to find to take his place in this sad charade?

Well you've got your Kamala useless as a brick or you've got your Gavina oily as a slick.

Or maybe some complete unknown who might provide some drama polished up to seek the crown just like Barack Obama.

They want to act and act real fast before the cause is lost They think the cure is "change the cast" but still they'll all get tossed.

And meantime for the Donald he can stand and wait keep his words and temper channeled Let them seal their fate.
