

Marc Lamont Hill, 'Philosemite'

by Hugh Fitzgerald

Marc Lamont Hill is a professor of Media Studies at Temple University. He writes quite a bit about Israel and Jews. It appears to be the subject that interests him the most. He doesn't care for Israel. The Israelis appall him. He does have a soft spot for the Palestinians. In 2018, he was fired as a commentator for CNN when it was revealed that he had tweeted "from the river to the sea, Palestine will soon be free," which amounts to a call for Israel's destruction and its replacement by "Palestine." He kept his position at Temple University, however. Now there are calls for the university to discipline him for his denunciation of Jews who support Israel. The report is here: "Temple University Must Take Action Against Marc Lamont Hill," by Melissa Landa, Jihad Watch.
