

"Not Intimidated" – Wilders in RTL Interview on Garland, Texas Failed Jihad Attack

Geert Wilders, leader of the Dutch Freedom Party (PVV) was interviewed by RTL following the Garland, Texas, Jihad attack on the Muhammad Art Exposition sponsored by the American Freedom Defense Initiative (AFDI). In this first TV news interview with RTL following the episode, Wilders speaks of the importance he, organizer Pam Geller and others who spoke at the event place on criticizing a political doctrine passing as a religion despite threats of violence by Jihadists. He notes that the AFDI program exercised free speech rebutting the Stand with the Prophet in Honor and Respect event organized by doctrinaire Muslim leaders at the same Curtis Culwell Center Garland, Texas venue less than one week after the massacre by Jihadists at the Charlie Hebdo editorial offices in January in Paris that killed 12. See Wilders' remarks following the Charlie Hebdo and Hyper Kacher kosher supermarket attacks, the latter killed four Jews.. As we posted yesterday he offered to stage an exposition at the Hague Parliament of the artworks displayed by the AFDI at the May 3, 2015 held at the Curtis Center Culwell in Garland, Texas. Wilders draws attention to the example of the Prophet Mohammed, currently followed by ISIS, beheading and enslaving Jews and others during the founding of Islam. He said that such an ideology based on terrorism as anathetical to Judeo Christian principles underling values of Western democracies.

Watch the Wilders RTL interview:

