

On Climate Alarmists and Other Discarded Relics

It is with inexpressible pleasure that I reply to the attack on me this week by Dr. Michael Mann, the discredited harpy of the now almost defunct global warming movement.

Readers may recall that last week, Mann made a cameo appearance in my column about the coalition industriously cobbled together by Naomi Klein, of Marxists, eco-alarmists, native-activists, and a congeries of opinionated useful idiots rounded up in the lounges of the Toronto International Film Festival in what called itself the Leap movement. I National Post.
