

Ordeal of the 11-year-old ISIS sex slave used as a human shield

A depraved Islamic State militant used an 11-year-old sex slave as a human shield by strapping her to the bonnet of his car while driving into battle. The terrified girl was left screaming for her life after being tied to the windscreen of a Humvee military vehicle to protect her captor from enemy gunfire. When she is not being paraded through war zones, the Yazidi child is repeatedly raped by the fanatic, activists have revealed.

Lawyer Khaleel al-Dakhi, who runs a group that has rescued more than 1,000 Yazidis from ISIS through a network of informers, said the girl was still being held by her captor.

The girl is among 3,750 prisoners from the minority sect who were captured during the terror group's brutal uprising through northern Iraq last year. Many have been sold at slave markets destined for a life of sickening abuse at the hands of their captors.

Baroness Nicholson of Winterbourne, who sits in the House of Lords, compares their fate to those killed by the Nazis.

The 73-year-old, on a visit to a refugee camp in Iraq to highlight the Yazidis' plight, said: "The stories are mirror images of the foulest stories from Belsen and Auschwitz concentration camps. "It's a re-run of the stories I heard growing up as a post World War Two child. This is Hitler and Stalin all wrapped up together."

One victim, Khalida – a mother of three who managed to escape from IS – told how women and children were rounded up and then separated.

In a selection process compared to that of the SS at Auschwitz, she said disabled people and elderly women were separated to be exchanged in prisoner swaps.

Then virgins were taken away from other women.

The baroness described the ordeals of Yazidi women as “awful and gruesome”. She said: “These old men, high on cocaine and having watched violent pornography, then rape this poor girl of 11 and even younger girls. Then they produce a piece of paper signed by their leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi saying it’s part of their doctrine. That it’s Islam. ..”

Reports suggest women have been sold off as brides for as little as £16 or repeatedly raped if they refused.
