A Pakistani teenager is among three people arrested over an anti-Semitic firebomb attack in north London.

Four ambulances owned by a Jewish charity were set on fire outside a synagogue in Golders Green in the early hours of March 23.

A 17-year-old boy with dual British and Pakistani nationality was arrested in east London on Wednesday.

Two more British nationals – a 20-year-old man and a 19-year-old man – were arrested in the same area.

All three were arrested on suspicion of conspiracy to commit arson with intent to endanger life. They were taken to a London police station, where they remain in custody.

Counter-terror police are leading the investigation into the arson amid fears that it may have been orchestrated by Iran.

Two other men, aged 45 and 47 and both British nationals, were detained at addresses in north-west and central London last week on suspicion of arson with intent to endanger life. They were later released on bail.
