

Remainer Thugs, SNP Delusions And Screaming Victimhood, And Brexit Celebrations

by Brex i teer

You'll no doubt have been informed by just about every single main stream media outlet that outside the Scottish so-called Parliament building a large group of Scottish National Party (SNP) anti-Brexit remainers and delusional believers in magical incantations demonstrated their support for the oligarchic dictatorship of the European Union and their contempt for the free democracy of the union of the United Kingdom.

What those main stream outlets will not tell you is that those of us who wished to gather there to protest against the stupidity of the Scottish Executive's – sorry, the self-styled Scottish government's – insistence that the E.U. is, and will always be, the fount of all goodness and the spiritual home of all those who love their part of the U.K., despite all the evidence to the contrary, were threatened with violence, in no uncertain terms, if we dared to even turn up.

This is typical of SNP supporters whose thuggish instincts surface if anyone even dares to whisper opposition to any of their crackpot ideas. For safety's sake we decided on this occasion that cowardice was the better part of valour so we chose to hold our celebrations and our protests elsewhere and, as far as necessary, in private.

Needless to say there was no, and there will be no, coverage of those of us in Scotland who object to the SNP's stance on Brexit, or its stance on anything else for that matter. Nor will there be any mention of the fact that more people in Scotland voted for Brexit than voted for the SNP. Nor will there be any coverage of the horrendous terms (such as massive curtailment of government spending leading to severe austerity, signing up to limitations on free speech, control and limits on foreign trade outside the E.U., acceptance of unlimited migration from non-E.U. countries, supervision of the currently independent Scottish legal system by the unaccountable E.U. courts, etc. etc.) that would be imposed on Scotland as prerequisites for the province joining the E.U. at a later date.

The main stream media seem to be hell bent on breaking up the UK by fair means or foul and reports of the events in Scotland surrounding Brexit are deliberately slanted in such a way as to imply that Scotland must now leave the United Kingdom. It's dishonest and copiously demonstrates the underhand methods that most main stream journalists will use against the UK and its interests at every conceivable opportunity. Never has it been more true than it is now that if one does not read, listen to, or watch the main stream media then one is uninformed and if one does then one is totally misinformed.
