

Reza Aslan On "Deafening" Muslim Condemnation Of Radical Islam: "If You Don't Hear It, Then You're Not Listening"

As there's no there there – there never is with Reza Aslan, who has made a profession of this – I haven't bothered even to give the link to this latest appearance, in which he apparently assures us that the sound of Muslim voices denouncing the attacks on those who exercise free speech is like the deafening roar of night rote on the shingly shore of a boundless sea.