

Shakespeare's Alleged Drug Use

by David P. Gontar (December 2015)

When the media began recently to belch forth accounts of Shakespeare's use of drugs, many aging Hippies sat up and took notice. It seems that The Shakespeare Birthplace Trust decided to allow a collection of clay artifacts found in excavations at New Place, Stratford Village, to be handed over to Professor J.F. Thackeray and his team of palaeoanthropologists at the University of the Witwatersand in South Africa. more>>>