

She Looked So Sweet Until The Knife Came Out

Approached by an officer, the young girl handed over her identity documents – the usual opening interaction between documented migrants and police officers in Germany – but as he was distracted reading the paper, she struck. A spokesman said: “When the officer slightly turned away to check her identity, with lightning speed she stabbed him in the hand. The colleague had no chance to defend himself”.

At that point, other officers piled in and detained the girl. The struck officer had to receive emergency surgery, the kitchen knife having entered his neck, with a colleague remarking “it’s a miracle he survived”.
