

Terror suspect 'planned attack in Stockholm'

From the Swedish edition of Police told The Local that the same picture had been distributed to officers.

The suspect is believed to have been living in Sweden since September. Aftonbladet reported that he handed in an application for asylum at the Migration Agency's centre in Märsta near Stockholm, although that has yet to be officially confirmed.

The tabloid added he was taken from Skellefteå to Stockholm to be questioned in the capital, where the investigation will be carried out, on Friday afternoon.

Säpo has said that the man's alleged activities are not thought to be linked to the Paris attacks last week,
