

The Davis (Schabas) Report's Extraordinary Moral Inversion

It was widely predicted that the UN Human Rights Council's NGO Monitor revealed that anti-Israel NGOs have had a major influence on the UN Gaza Report, providing 201 citations as sources of information. The role of such organisations is widely understood to focus on demonising Israel in international forums. Indeed, even their own mission statements reveal highly published criticism by retired a US Army Lieutenant Colonel, Professor Geoffrey S. Corn. Professor Corn asserts that the report "distorted" international law, by constructing legal arguments which were totally detached from reality. He also criticised the committee for not featuring military commanders. And indeed the Davis report by misleadingly characterising Hamas' efforts to terrorise the civilian populace of Israel as "warnings," which the Israeli populace could heed thanks to the protection afforded by the Iron Dome system!

Could it be that the HRC committee felt Hamas was working in sympathy with the Iron Dome system to save Israel's civilians? When Hamas spokesman Fawzi Barhoum condemned Israel for not sharing its Iron Dome technology with the terror group!
