

This Deal Or War? What About A Better Deal?

David Horowitz on Obama's bad deal, and how he has misrepresented what Netanyahu has called for – which is to recognize Iran's economic weakness, and exploit it, by threatening further sanctions, unless Iran agrees not to mothball, but to destroy, the most important components of its nuclear-bomb project. That weakness comes from two main changes: first, the enormous sudden drop in oil revenues, which are down to 1/4 of what they were just a few years ago, because Iranian production, and the price per barrel, have both been cut in half, and second, the drought that has caused a major lake to dry up completely in eastern Iran, and done great damage across the country to agriculture.
