

Trump 2024! MAGA will Rise Again!

by Rebecca Bynum

Our beloved President has seemingly suffered a grievous loss by the slimmest of margins, but he is far from out of the political game. Assuming the vote totals hold, I look forward to him being a thorn in the side of President-elect Biden throughout the next four years while we continue to expand the Republican base and the great political re-alignment continues. The Republican Party is now the party of the working man, the farmers, the common-sense countryside. The Democrats are now the party of the global elites and the cities; it is now the party which flirts with socialism and many other unrealistic views of human nature.

The old establishment Republicans will try to take power back, but I believe it's too late for that now. The Party has momentum in the direction Trump has laid out – there is no future in going back to the country-club Republicans. The cheap-labor promoting Chamber of Commerce Republican Party is dead as a dodo.

Trump has the heart of a lion. He will not go quietly into retirement. He will come back stronger than ever and lead us to victory once again, especially considering the reckless policies Biden is likely to preside over. God help us.

Now, we press on to secure the Senate, then to take back the House in 2022, then the Presidency in 2024. MAGA will rise again!
