

Trump: Revoke Passports For Those Who Go To Fight For ISIS, Would 'Look At' Closing Certain Mosques'

claim about George W. Bush and September 11th, he did say that former President Bill Clinton, along with Bush holds responsibility for the 9/11 attacks. He added, "Now, was Clinton possibly, also guilty? Yeah, yeah sure. He should have maybe been more vigilant. And he actually said he knew about Osama bin Laden. I knew about Osama bin Laden, because I wrote about him in my book, I think 19 months before the World Trade Center came down."

He was also asked [relevant remarks begin in the second video] "Now, in the UK, in Britain, they've obviously got a terror problem. They've got a lot of youngsters going over to fight for ISIS, about – just under 1,000 are going over there, and they've got a whole new series of proposals to deal with this, including withdrawal of passports from some of these people who've gone –."

Trump responded, "Absolutely good, good."

After host Stuart Varney continued, "And closing some mosques, would you do the same thing in America." Trump answered, "I would do that. Absolutely. I think it's great."

When asked if you could close a mosque, Trump then stated, "Well, I don't know. I mean, I haven't heard about the closing of the mosque. It depends, if the mosque is, you know, loaded for bear, I don't know. You're going to have to certainly look at it. But I can tell you one thing ,if somebody goes over and they want to fight for ISIS, they wouldn't be coming back."
