

What He Said

I just ran across a comment on Benjamin Netanyahu's speech this morning before a joint session of Congress. It's written by someone who was, he says, originally skeptical of the worth of such a speech, but he listened – carefully – and had to revise his earlier opinion.

What he said is worth posting – and if you had any doubts before the speech, as did this blogger Jazz Shaw, you should now have none.

Read here.